wrong?[Multiple symmetrical lipomatosis with a concomitant growth hormone-secreting pituitary tumor]. A 43-year-old woman was referred to our hospital with a 5-year history of lipomatosis of the gluteal region. In addition to this, there was evidence of a concomitant tumor of the pituitary gland. Clinical examination showed that the gluteal area was diffusely covered with soft and lobulated fat. There was no cervical lymphadenopathy. Laboratory findings were consistent with growth hormone excess: fasting serum growth hormone level was 23.5 ng/ml and the fasting serum insulin-like growth factor I level was 16.6 ng/ml (normal range, 8.2-26.5 ng/ml). A basal and postglucose challenge serum insulin level was inappropriately normal (3.2 mU/l). Abdominal computed tomography showed an enhanced mass, which was similar to the subcutaneous fat, in the left anterior pituitary region. The patient underwent transsphenoidal pituitary tumor resection. Pathological examination of the tumor revealed a 1.5 x 1.5 x 0.6 cm histologically typical pituitary adenoma, consistent with growth hormone-secreting pituitary tumor. The patient's symptoms markedly improved after surgery, and the laboratory data normalized. On the basis of the clinical and histological findings, the patient was diagnosed as having multiple symmetrical lipomatosis associated with an adenoma of the pituitary gland. To the best of our knowledge, this is the first case of a patient with multiple symmetrical lipomatosis and concomitant growth hormone-secreting pituitary tumor.[The skin as a site for HIV infection].
