The use of this motion capture data will change the game on an on-the-field level, as players will utilize realistic attributes within their on-the-field movements. Players will be able to dodge or take advantage of opponents when executing their on-the-ball actions. "Bold and unpredictable on-the-field behaviors are core elements of football but can be notoriously difficult to capture," said Ian Cooper, EA Sports Executive Creative Director. "By using data collected during matches in real life, we're able to capture all the skills, behaviors, and movements that players will show during matches using our motion capture suits. This will give us a powerful tool to help players on the pitch express their own unique style of play." The game will also include some of the most accurate cameras in a video game today, including the FIFA Interactive Network, powerful lighting, and a high-resolution, dynamic grass. The ultimate goal of FIFA 22 is to deliver the most realistic football video game, allowing players to experience the joy of playing the beautiful game as never before. Playable national teams include Brazil, Colombia, Chile, England, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Peru, Portugal, Scotland, South Korea, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, the United States of America, and Uruguay. More will be announced at a later date. FIFA 22 will be launched in fall 2016 on PlayStation 4, Xbox One and Windows PC/Steam. FIFA 20 delivered unprecedented momentum and engagement during the launch month, scoring the best start on record for EA SPORTS™ FIFA on console. With over 50 million players now at the peak of the FIFA Ultimate Team™* experience and over 60 million active FIFA Ultimate Team™ matches played, the combination of gameplay, flexibility and community is what makes FIFA different. EA SPORTS FIFA 20 has now clocked more than 4.2 billion players* around the world, making it the most popular sports video game of all time. FIFA 20 also saw unparalleled achievements across all console platforms. On Xbox One, FIFA 20 was the best-selling game in the UK and North America during its launch weekend, and was the second best-selling game in the world during the calendar month of August. Across all platforms and in all regions, FIFA 20 was the best-selling sports video game in August. EA SPORTS FIFA 20 will be available digitally on Xbox One, PlayStation 4 and PC
