He had to dig deeper to find the accident report, which showed the driver had a history of domestic abuse. The incident happened last month at the Deer Creek Road and Boca Raton Road intersection. The intersection is right outside the Aurora Treatment Center, which is known for treating domestic violence. "Only the victim could afford the treatment," said Alissa Voorhees, the Executive Director of Aurora Treatment Center. Dr. Voorhees said the suspect in the accident, 48-year-old William Antonelli, has a history of domestic abuse. He was briefly arrested for domestic battery in 2008. Voorhees also said this is not the first time that Antonelli has been charged with domestic abuse. Antonelli is facing a misdemeanor domestic battery charge for this incident. The police report shows the victim swerved to avoid hitting the vehicle as Antonelli ran into traffic. "I just felt so bad for the victim, and I just thought it was really important," said Voorhees. "I was in shock, like, what does this person do? This person has been to my facility." Voorhees said the victim was able to provide more information after the incident

. working if you have a good computer software. It is utilized and tested by lots of people. Download Elcomsoft Wireless Security Auditor Professional 5.1.271 :Q: Get most frequent words from string with REGEX I have a need to get the most frequent words from a text string and place it on a table. So far I have a working Regex for finding the exact words but it only works if every single word is the same. I would like to be able to get the most frequent words from the text string so if there are different words, it should return the single most frequent word. Example: string: "Hello, my name is John, do you know Bob?" Expected result: $name = "Bob"; $city = "John"; There can be more than one most frequent word in the string. A: function getMostFrequentArray($text) { $words = preg_split('/\s+/', $text); sort($words); return array_slice($words, 0, count($words)-1); } print_r(getMostFrequentArray("Hello, my name is John, do you know Bob?")); //Array ( [0] => my [1] => name [2] => know) Tested it on PHP 5.3.8 A: Solution: $text = "Hello, my name is John, do you know Bob?"; preg_match_all("/[a-z0-9]+/i", $text, $matches); returns: array 0 => array 0 => string 'Bob' (length=4) 1 => array 0 => string 'John' (length=5) Makes the decision of word inclusion case insensitive as well. A:

There is a great regular expression for doing this (anonymous function):

`\w+|\b(?:\w+)?\s+)([\w\.]++)` It looks for 1 or more word characters (`\w+`), or possibly a space/word boundary (`\b`), then optionally 1 or more word characters, `d0c515b9f4`

If I want to apply WPA2 and WPA cracking, I just need a browser that will allow me to crack a WPA key. I don't need any special program. I just open up a web page. I am not really looking for a hacker program. I am looking for a way to bypass the 4 to 8 digit code that the wireless is using to secure the password. I need to log in through a wireless network and I don't know the password. I am looking for a way to crack a WPA (2) and WPA (1) password. This includes the four to eight digit code. I have an IP cam and it will show me a four to eight digit code when I connect to a network, but I cannot remember the password. I need to crack that password so I can get back in to my network. I can use any browser that will allow me to crack the password. I have tried Safari and Edge on Windows 8.1 and Windows 10, but neither work. I can do it in any browser, but I just want to avoid Flash if possible. I have tried Firefox and Chrome and neither work either. I have tried Internet Explorer 11, but it won't work either. All I'm looking for is a way to display a web page so that I can get into the network. A: I finally found a simple way to crack a WPA2 and WPA1 password. I was able to crack a WPA2 password in less than a minute. I was able to crack a WPA1 password in less than three minutes. Both of these were through a browser. It is still a work in progress, but it worked.
